About Air China:

Air China is China's exclusive national flag carrier of civil aviation, a member of the Star Alliance, the world's largest alliance member. By December 31, 2015, Air China (including its holding companies) owns 655 aircrafts, featuring Boeing and Airbus. 420 routes are being operated, including 101 international, 16 regional and 303 domestic ones, covering 40 countries and regions. In cooperation with Star Alliance member airlines, Air China's service network is further extended to 1330 destinations in 192 countries.

Starting from May 5, 2014, Air China has launched non-stop service from Vienna to Beijing, using Airbus A330-200 aircraft with 3 flights weekly. This route has made a major contribution to facilitate the communication between Vienna and all regions in China, which strongly benefits both the economy and tourism developments.
